Embracer Group studio Crystal Dynamics enters into a development and publishing agreement with Amazon Games

Crystal Dynamics, part of Embracer Group’s operative group Crystal Dynamics – Eidos Montréal, today announced an agreement with Amazon Games regarding developing and publishing a new multi-platform Tomb Raider game title. The agreement announced today is one of the deals with several industry partners, previously discussed in conjunction with Embracer’s Q2 report, that are jointly transformative. Additional deals are expected to close during the financial year 2022/23.

“I am very happy for Crystal Dynamics, which has now found a fantastic partner for one of the strongest IPs and most ambitious game development projects in our portfolio. Ever since Crystal Dynamics – Eidos Montréal joined the family and became our twelfth operative group, it has been our mutual ambition to find a partner that shares Crystal Dynamics’ creative vision and ambitions for Tomb Raider, and also empowers them to continue creating incredible AAA games for PC/Console. As previously stated in conjunction with our Q2 report, the group is working on deals with several industry partners covering a range of large-budget games over the coming six years that are jointly transformative. The agreement announced today is one of these deals. Additional deals are expected to close during the financial year 2022/23,” says Lars Wingefors, Co-founder and Group CEO, Embracer Group.
